

AN AWKWARD INTRODUCTION

Hi there. I'm Jason Calhoun.

My hope is that by the time you're done reading, you will at the very least be intrigued, and at most feel like reading this was the best thing you've done - ever.

There's a lot riding on the next few words I type. They'll probably determine whether you keep reading, or start skimming; so I'll start with why I'm unique.

Five years ago we (my wife and 3 kids) left everything behind; a house, two cars, security, and a lot of comfort to pursue our passions and dreams. We moved into a 250sq foot travel trailer and started living simply and intentionally as we traveling the country full-time.

In an effort to keep the words on this page down to an "ideal" length, I'll cut to the point which is that; the last 5 years changed my life, and my perspective forever. When we risked comfort to live out purpose, it motivated me to risk in other areas too.

I've owned and operated a small video production company for the past 5 years. There are parts I love about it, and parts I don't. The parts I don't love have lead me to seek out a new role where I can focus more on the creative, and less on the "business".

This brings me to this cover letter, sent to you specifically. I like what you guys are about, and think that we could be a great match. I think that if your company met my passion at a bar, they'd become fast friends.

Of course right now we're still in the awkward stage, but hopefully that won't last too long. So please, grab a drink, and let's chat.

Jason Calhoun
.: (530) 409-3291
.: jasoncalhoun.net
.: hello@jasoncalhoun.net

